THE LIMITS OF PATIENCE

Sen. Barkley's vehement declaration of rebellion against President Roosevelt on the revenue bill issue brings the tension between congress and the White House to a climax.

Sen. Barkley as majority leader in the senate since 1937 has been Mr. Roosevelt's agent in the handling of administration bills. It has been his job to get legislation approved, whether he personally liked it or not. As he said in his outburst on Wednesday, he has "carried the flag over rougher territory than was ever traversed by any majority leader... sometimes with little help on the senate floor and more often with less help from the other end of Pennsylvania ave."

It is no secret that the limits of his patience were approached often; when Mr. Roosevelt sent his bad-tempered veto message on the revenue bill to congress, the limits were reached and Sen. Barkley exploded. What he had to say thereafter—and it was one of the most masterful jobs of free-handed blistering performed in recent times—undoubtedly had been in his heart and the hearts of many other congressmen a long time. It is recalled that Sen. Taft said somewhat the same thing when Mr. Roosevelt insulted congress on the soldier ballot problem, but he spoke as a member of the minority; not as Mr. Roosevelt's personal liaison agent in the upper house.

The climax of tension now reached is a momentous turn of events. Its potential repercussions in the operation of congress the remainder of this year are so tremendous that even senators and representatives only can guess at them. If Mr. Roosevelt is unable to reorganize his party's congressional delegation successfully, the remainder of his legislative program is junk. If members of congress cannot find within themselves the ability to agree on a coalition program of their own, they will be working at loose ends. In a sense, they have declared their independence of executive domination. Certainly, they have expressed resentment of executive abuse of their composite character. It remains now to be seen what they will do in their new mood of independence.

Sen. Barkley's present term in the senate expires at the end of this session of congress. Though he has not announced his candidacy for re-election, it is assumed that he will run—and it also may be assumed he did not call for a showdown with Mr. Roosevelt until he had estimated the probabilities in Kentucky, where his constituents are deciding who should represent their state in the years ahead. To go a step further with political probability, Sen. Barkley probably has given a lot of deep thought to the election of a Republican governor in normally Democratic Kentucky last year and the ability of a Republican to carry the fourth congressional district by a majority of 13,000 as against a majority of 4,800 for the Democrat who ran in the same district in 1942.

We do not say that Sen. Barkley has used the occasion to let loose of Franklin D. Roosevelt's coat tail because only the senator knows what is in his own mind. The circumstances suggest, however, that it may have been vastly easier for Sen. Barkley to part company with the New Deal in February, 1944, than it would have been in 1938 when there was a good deal of scandal about the way the late WPA turned on the heat in Kentucky to make certain that "Dear Alben," who previously had been installed as Mr. Roosevelt's choice for senate majority leader, would be back on the job for the term now in its last year.

THE REVENUE ISSUE

There is no clear case for or against a given estimate of new revenue, such as the estimate of 10 1/2 billion dollars made in the case of the proposed tax bill submitted by the administration and rejected by congress in favor of a bill to produce an estimated 2 1/3 billion. These are matters of opinion, not fact. Expert testimony can be lined up on both sides.

The administration's opinion that at least 10 1/2 billion should be raised, like Wendell Willkie's opinion that the total should be 16 billion, is based nominally on fear of inflation plus desire to pay as much of the cost of the war currently as possible. Congressional opinion favoring a smaller total, as expressed in the revenue bill, is based on denial that the people need to be taxed to the limit to avert inflation and on the contention that taxpayers already are doing about as much as they can be asked to do without running into the law of diminishing returns.

These differences of opinion are honest. They are not unmixing with a certain amount of election year politics, but there is an honest difference of opinion there, too. Mr. Roosevelt thought it was good politics to abuse congress for not carrying out his wishes, and congress thought it was better politics to fight back. The voters will make the decision on who carried that point.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, February 26

A particularly lively and progressive day is forecast from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. It is a time for summoning exceptional talents and skills for promoting cherished goals, especially if they have a decided mechanical or engineering objective and are in connection with group or public service of far reaching scope. Finances may be under expansive rule, and should embrace support from influential sources, with promotion and preferments as rewards for merit and sturdy work, even against certain deep oppositions or dubious entanglements. Domestic, social and affectional affiliations should also thrive.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year of expansive, productive and fruitful effort, with the energies and faculties under which impetus for outstanding achievements, with recognition, promotion and probably public honors. Major aims and objectives are happily stressed, with new openings for enduring returns and rewards. The personal social domestic and love life contribute to general wellbeing and happiness. Sidestep under-cover lures of intrigue.

A child born on this day should have much ability and ambition with many opportunities in life for attaining position, prestige and personal happiness.

PEACE TERMS FOR FINLAND

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 25.—Reported Russian terms for an armistice with Finland, especially those regarding the disposition of German troops garrisoned in northern Finland, are understood here to have met with a mixed reception in Finnish circles.

The London correspondent of Dagbladet Nyheter listed today six Soviet armistice demands from unofficial but well-informed non-British sources who he said were optimistic about Finland's chances of quitting the war.

According to the dispatch, the Moscow conditions included:

1. The 1940 winter peace border.
2. German troops in northern Finland must be interned for the duration.
3. If Finland desires, the Red army will march into the country to assist in putting the Germans under control, but Finland's decision on this point will be voluntary.
4. If Finland and Russia agree on the Red army marching in, Russia will guarantee to retire after the military operation against the Germans is completed.
5. Moscow makes no demands for changes in the Finnish government.
6. Demobilization of the Finnish army and war damages are to be settled by later negotiations.

Against this optimistic approach was the statement of a trustworthy Finn just arrived in Sweden who said the biggest obstacles to peace are reported Russian demands—not included in the London version—that the Finnish army team up with the Russians in a drive to exterminate the seven German divisions now in Finland, and that Soviet troops garrison the principal Finnish cities for the duration.

Finland, the informant continued, understanding the Russians to feel there would be little point in an armistice if the Germans still controlled northern Finland with its valuable minerals, or if Nazi troops were permitted to slip out of the country unopposed for use elsewhere.

(A Finnish home radio broadcast quoted Vaino Tanner, Finnish minister of finance, as saying "If terms (with Russia) are acceptable, we shall accept them immediately. If peace terms are impossible, we shall fight on with clenched teeth and await what the future holds in store.")

Doctor Conducts Food Experiments

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I HAVE just concluded a dietetic experiment, undertaken for a group of students of nutrition, and since in some ways the results were surprising to me I venture to lay them before you.

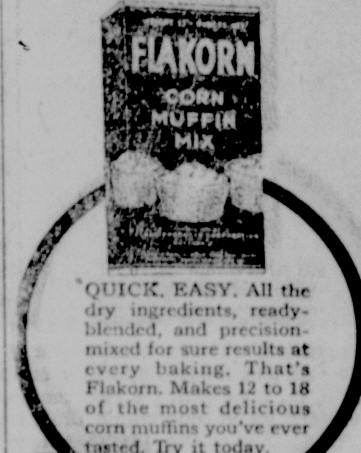

One day I faithfully made a list of every morsel I had to eat. After breakfast I wrote down the items and their weight. Same with lunch and dinner—l'après midi d'un dieticien. I want to emphasize that I made no plans for what I should eat, I ate what was put before me or, in the case of lunch, what I chose. No "foreordained plan" was made for a balanced diet, or the inclusion of the vitamins or minerals or other protective food. It was as nearly as possible the same average kind of food I have on other days left to custom, appetite and chance.

Then I made a list of the food elements that are agreed upon as constituting a balanced diet, and the daily requirements by weight considered necessary by the best authorities.

A Balanced Diet

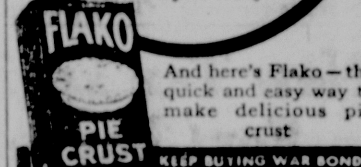

Here they are:
The basic foods—Protein—50 to 100 grams. Carbohydrate and Fat—enough with protein to make up 1,500 to 2,500 calories.

Minerals—Salt (5 grams). Calcium (45 gram). Phosphorus (36 gram). Sulphur (1 gram). Iron (.006 gram). Magnesium, iodine, etc.—traces

CORN MUFFIN MIX

LUNCHEON

- 1 small cup coffee—no cream or sugar.

The other calculations did not surprise me so much, but may be a surprise to others who are artificially stuffing themselves with vitamins, iron, etc. My iron requirement is 6 milligrams a day. I took in twenty times that amount! I got twice my iron requirement in my egg at breakfast.

I got a little more calcium than I needed. My phosphorus intake was close to the minimum requirement.

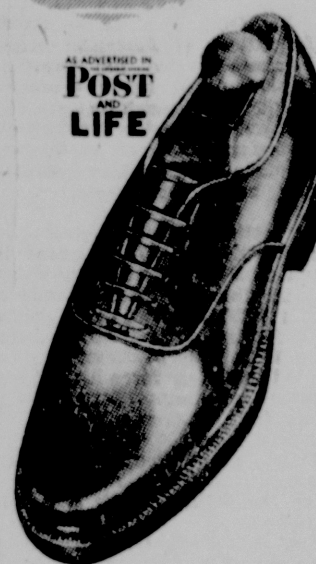

ment. I was lower in that than anything.

As to vitamins, I am flooded with them. I took in 2,890 of A, and I only need 1,500; enough B, thiamine and riboflavin; three times as much C as requirements demand, and sunshine will give me plenty of D.

And again I emphasize I did not plan the meals to get a large vitamin or mineral content. They just came naturally in the food that was set before me.

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED by ANNE ROWE

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

"Ayah. Sure. Like Miss Marcella. Inspector Pettengill's patience was wearing out, and his shrewd mind saw the tiny opening. You could knock me down with a feather, Mr. Loring, when you know about here and here—Mr. Linwood."

"Oh, that's an old story," Loring shrugged the matter aside. "It's been going on for years. Sonda and I cry on my shoulder about the hopelessness of it—his wife's refusal to give him a divorce. But everyone thinks that you're going to marry her," I blurted.

"Everyone thinks a lot of things," Loring told us. "If time were really so brief as I think, I would marry Sonda to give her the pleasure of seeing her lover's yearning for a bit of my money. But as it is—there is a joy to behold and I've been very fond of her. But as a ready diet her little affectations wouldn't agree with me. By the way, how did you find out her secret?"

"Mrs. Turner stumbled on it," Loring said briefly. "The Inspector said briefly, 'Look, Mr. Loring: I don't aim to keep on telling you things. I want to tell me. Let's get back to where we were when Miss Linda came in on us. I'd told you of my chippings old Mack made a habit of. And that he had none what happened to break up the marriage to this Miss Warren—Miss Linda's mother.'"

"Oh, yes—yes! You asked me if I could account for the gap, and I couldn't, but thought it might that old Mack hadn't kept complete record of my past, so I said, 'So you did.' The Inspector was getting into his stride. 'But you can help me out. Tell me what was in them missing clip-

"Not much more than in the two I showed me, I believe."

"Okay. Then tell me the whole story. Might find a clue in it for your going on here, right now."

Loring's smile slowly changed to a fixed grimace of pain. "All right," he agreed after a long pause. "I'm rather awkward, in front of a writer, but Mrs. Turner is a writer and will probably regard it all in light of material. So here goes: was blackmail. Not pure, but simple. Blackmail after an interval of—around seven years. A—rather generous Folies Bergeres girl was claiming a right to me, as the mother of my son."

"I see. And—was she?"

"No." The answer came sharply. "She'd been a member of a certain weekend party at my country place near Paris—my special partner on the occasion, she maintained. She may have been. I didn't, and don't remember. I was drinking a lot, running pretty wild those days. It was the year after my first wife's death and I was trying might have had a case against me, if it hadn't been for the discrepancy of the dates. I sailed for New York, right after that party. And my alleged son was born—almost eleven months later."

"Hummm—kind of unnatural," the Inspector commented dryly. "But they're one thing I don't get: Why did this here woman wait seven years to file her claim?"

"Perhaps in the hope I'd forgotten the date I sailed, after all that time. And perhaps she'd heard about my approaching re-marriage and thought it was a good moment for a shake-down," Loring shrugged.

"Hummm—ayah. Might be. Sure wasn't a good moment for you. Spoiled your new marriage, didn't it?"

"Yes. Thanks to my wife's family," Loring replied. "Let's not get into that, Inspector. The one thing I want you to know is: If I'd known my wife was going to have a child, I'd never have given her up. And now that I've found my daughter—thanks to McVane's intervention—I'm not going to lose her again. And I'm not going to have her murdered either. By a member of my sister's family, or Linwood, or anyone else who's after the Bureka money."

"Glad to hear you say so." Inspector Pettengill beamed. "I hope that young spitfire of yours'll come around in the end. Could make you a mighty nice daughter, Miss Linda could. And you a mighty fine father for her. Specially as she don't want your—money. But to get back to help me now all you can. No matter who the murderer is?"

Loring nodded solemnly.

"Good! Then—tell me the rest of that old blackmail story. The part you kept quiet about so far."

"You are observant, Inspector!" Loring smiled. And for the first time his smile was real, and free of irony. "I'll be glad to tell you the rest. I was only holding it back because—let's say, I was waiting for—oh, well—I'm going to make a clean breast of it now."

And then, just when I was sitting on the edge of my chair, all keyed up with expectancy, he turned to me, saying ever so apologetically:

"Sorry. But—er—this is where the script reads: 'Exit Mrs. Turner.' I walked away from the police cottage in a welter of conflicting emotions: Grief for Stray. Baffled sympathy for Burns Loring, while wondering why he had shunted me out."

The grief for Stray was uppermost. I'd have given anything in the world to see the little dog capering around me, alive and happy, be able to sit down by the roadside and tell him my problems.

Again I thought of Loring's smile . . . It must be a blind. A shutter he drew over the great loneliness of a life wasted in fruitless search—for happiness.

Would Linda come to understand her father, and forgive him? Could I make her see that Loring had not been a heartless rake, but a headstrong, hot-blooded, blundering young fool, who'd paid dearly for every false step he'd made?

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The War department announced today the establishment of a personal affairs division of the army service forces to help military personnel with information and advice on personal and family problems.

The new unit, says the Army, is "concerned solely with dispensing information aimed at a solution, through proper channels, of problems pertaining to emergency financial aid, allowances, arrears in pay, war bonds, gratuity pay, insurance, pensions, legal assistance, employment, vocational rehabilitation, hospitalization, housing facilities and personal effects."

filed into the chamber during the reading of the message.
Barkley helped clear the atmosphere between Congress and the President by dispatching a letter of friendship to President Roosevelt last night, but even the generally conciliatory tone of this message did not completely bridge the gaping breach between the executive and legislative branches of the government. Barkley made it clear that in the future there must be cooperation both ways.

Although expressing the deepest desire for continuation of the traditionally cordial relations between the two, Barkley declared:

"In this great crisis of our nation's history we must all seek some common ground upon which we can meet and have confidence in one another. That applies to all branches of government. If we cannot trust one another in this tragic period of the history of our nation and of the world, how can the people trust us?"

In renouncing his post as leader on Wednesday, Barkley declared Congress would vote to override if it "has any self respect yet left."

U. S. War Casualty List Now 157,865

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—American casualties in the war now total 157,865, of which 36,005 are dead.

Undersecretary of War Patterson reported Thursday that U. S. Army casualties from Dec. 7, 1941, to Feb. 7, 1944, totaled 118,128, divided as follows: Killed 16,499; wounded 45,545; missing 26,339; prisoners of war 26,745.

Casualties in the sea services—Navy, Marines and Coast Guard—based on reports up to today have amounted to 39,737, as follows: Killed 16,506; wounded 9,322; missing 9,491; prisoners 4,418.

Patterson said of the 45,545 soldiers wounded, 24,289 have returned to duty.
Of the total prisoners, he said, 1,664 have been officially reported by the enemy to have died in prison camps, mostly in Japanese-occupied areas. He commented "it is known that the actual number must, in sad reality, be much larger."

Spain enroute home after 13 months internment in Germany—diplomats, newsmen and relief workers—say Germany can be beaten on the battlefield, but warn us that there's almost no sign of internal collapse visible to the observer. This report comes through Taylor Henry, Associated Press correspondent, who was one of the internees. Henry records that while the German fighting strength has decreased, morale seems to have tightened to meet the emergency.

E. Palestine Maps Plans For Post-War Hospital

EAST PALESTINE, Feb. 25.—East Palestine's post-war planning committee will ask Mayor Walter A. Hunston and city council to secure land on which to erect a 20-bed hospital as their major project after the war, members announce.
Robert Henry, secretary, has been instructed to write Hunston and councilmen asking that they begin negotiations to secure land in the city for the proposed project.
Because the nearest hospital is about 20 miles away, committee members believe that the proposed project would be favored by federal authorities.

Carrier Shangri-La Dips Bow Into Elizabeth River

PORTSMOUTH, Va., Feb. 24.—Bearing a name symbolizing America's determination to blast Tokyo into oblivion, the huge aircraft carrier Shangri-La plumed into the Elizabeth river yesterday afternoon on her first lap toward a date with destiny.
Christened by the wife of Maj. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle, whose Army fliers bombed Tokyo in April, 1942, the new warship sped down her building ways to the cheers of more than 75,000 spectators who, a moment earlier, heard Virginia's governor describe that first raid as "a portent of what is to come."

RED CROSS CHAPTER'S PART IN WAR

Home Service Aids Soldier and Family

The home service division, broadest of all Red Cross programs in its peace and war time scope, has shifted into high gear and turned most of its activities to assistance to servicemen and their families.

In charge of Miss Hazel Linn, chapter executive, secretary, this phase of the work offers aid to all members of the armed forces and their families—material relief in many cases.

Each chapter, literally, accomplished a thousand and one assorted and highly important services. It acts as a means of communication between the military and the civil forces, planning marriages for servicemen and women, recommending extensions of leaves when circumstances warrant it, verifying needs for furloughs, counsels and aids AWOL servicemen in returning to their posts.

Assist Soldiers Families

Chapter officers assist families in packing boxes for shipment to sons and husbands held as prisoners of war in the Axis countries; conduct inquiries through international headquarters on the health and welfare of those prisoners; prepare social and medical reports for military authorities to use in individual cases; make loans and outright grants of money to families and servicemen when it is needed.

Workers aid discharged veterans in business, insurance, pension and hospital matters. They do public speaking in the interests of Red Cross, interpreting policies, explaining its program features and values to the public—it is the link between the serviceman and his family once happens the most interesting. Some of the largest of these recreation centers are in England, Australia, Egypt, India, Sicily and Alaska, where the Red Cross has attempted to provide cheery comfortable lounges with reading rooms. For food and room, at the instigation of the military authorities, the Red Cross charges a small fee—usually about 30 cents for room and meals.

Bedside Nursing Service

Staff workers have been asked to furnish at a moment's notice everything from diving suits, Kosher meals for weddings, engagement rings, to quick hospitalization for dogs, advice on the care and feeding of orphan kangaroos and decisions on delicate matters of etiquette.

On the homefront, the home service division maintains a nursing service and conducts home nursing courses for young women and classes for homemakers.

Salem has one of the few bedside nursing services still maintained in Ohio—and one of the best, officials declare.

Mrs. Augusta Ibele is director of the program which provides maternal instruction and care, gives malnutrition information to mothers, conducts programs of information and assistance to civilians in need.

The public health nurse works directly with the doctors, taking their instructions and orders as nurses in hospitals follow the directions of the supervising physicians.

Nurse Makes Many Visits

In family work, the nurse makes one call in the home and if the patient refuses a doctor, the nurse does not return for she must have a doctor's supervision to administer medicines and treatment. She works with other community health agencies, city and school health groups.

The public health nurse performs the duties of a visiting nurse, assisting new mothers and instructing them in child care, in general health measures, family hygiene.

Mrs. Ibele makes about 150 visits each month, mostly to aid aged and inform persons. In emergency, epidemic or disaster, she would assist other Red Cross and civilian defense workers. Her first duty, in wartime, according to Red Cross policy, is service to disabled servicemen and their families.

Work of instruction in this branch of home service work is entirely volunteer. A leader in that field is Miss Martha Campbell, who has taught a number of home nursing classes. Last year a group of young girls, junior commandos, and classes of older women in the community as well as in rural sections, received home nursing instruction.

THIS FIGHTER WEIGHS IN AT

8 TONS ON OUR SCALES

AS YOU would see him on a scale, he would weigh 180 pounds of bone, muscle and fighting energy—a fine specimen of American manhood. But on the scales of the Army—and the Railroads—his "fighting weight" is...8 tons.

This is why: the equipment, supplies, ammunition, food and other items required for every man going overseas average close to 8 tons. What is more, he needs a ton a month of all these things as long as he is over there. Or, just twice as much a day as the soldier in World War I.

So, you see, the railroad's job isn't only moving troops—but all they require, too. Therefore, if you should find travel not all that it used to be, the Pennsylvania Railroad asks you kindly to remember the above facts. We are doing our best to serve you. But military needs must come first, as all Americans would have it.

Billy Southworth Pleased Pepper Martin Is Rejoining Cards

'PEP' 40, STILL CAPABLE STAR

St. Louis Manager Hopes To Use Him As Pinch-Hitter In Games

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Feb. 25.—The Old Pepper Box of the Gas House gang is going back to the parks where he stole bases, hit, scrapped and won games for the St. Louis Cardinals for 11 years—and is Manager Billy Southworth glad!

"I surely am happy to have him back," Southworth exulted at his farm near Sunbury when he heard Pepper Martin would be back with the Cards this season.

"He is a dandy fellow. And he still can do things like throwing and running. He still has his old-time sparkle and speed. I think he will help the Cards a lot."

What if Pepper will be 40 years old next week?

"A lot of guys are going to be fooled if they think 'Pep' is creaking around on tired, doddering legs," Southworth said.

"Why, just last season 'Pep' was the fastest man on the Rochester (International league) club. He proved it in a race one day at Portsmouth."

Martin managed Rochester, a Cardinal farm, the past four seasons.

Southworth indicated he expected Pepper to be most useful as a pinch-hitter, especially against left-handers.

At Oklahoma City, Martin said he might not be quite as fast as in the days when he was stealing all bases in sight, but he still could beat a lot of fast men in a 50-yard—or even 60-yard dash.

"I can play at least 80 games this year—and that's a conservative estimate. I think I could go 100. But Billy Southworth's a great manager and whatever he says goes."

"I'll tell you one thing. I think I'll do as good as some of the 4-Fers they got up there."

REP. COFFEE URGES BREAK WITH SPAIN

In Speech Before House, Demands Severance of Diplomatic Ties

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. — Rep. Coffee (D-Wash.) today demanded that the United States immediately break all diplomatic relations with Spain.

"We must make this break now on our own terms," he said in a speech prepared for delivery in the house, "before the Axis forces us to break with Fascist Spain on terms such as Japan handed us at Pearl Harbor."

Coffee, who previously has called for a house investigation of Falangist activities in South America, denounced Franco, Spain's leader, as "Hitler's faithful puppet" and as a man of worthless promises.

"There is no doubt, Coffee declared, as to where Falangist Spain fits into the Axis war picture."

"Neutral Spanish ships," he said, "deliver thousands of Nazi agents to ports in every American nation. 'Neutral' Spanish ships deliver thousands of tons of Nazi propaganda to all of Latin America. 'Neutral' Spanish ships rendezvous with Nazi submarines in Latin American waters; supply them with oil, water and food; give them information on the movements of United Nations convoys."

"In the face of the cold facts about Franco in Spain and Franco in Latin America, why are we permitting a new smokescreen to be raised in Madrid and in London and in Washington when the issue of Spain's role is broached?"

"Why all this pious dream talk about Franco's 'new' neutrality? Why all this fantastic nonsense about Franco breaking with Hitler?"

"The Spanish people, the representative declared, do not want Franco, adding they are a 'thousand times more weary of Fascism than they are of war.'"

He called upon Congress to go on record as favoring an immediate break with Franco and to offer the moral and physical resources of this nation to the unified Spanish anti-Fascist underground movement.

U. S. Dogs of K-9 Corps Are Given Best of Care

CHICAGO, Feb. 25. — American war dogs of the K-9 corps have everything a dog could bark for, and no whippings.

In fact, says Lt. Col. Douglas Parmenter in the journal of the American Veterinary Medical association, they are the best cared-for dogs in the world.

The army pooches get "shots" to prevent distemper, regular allotments of vitamin pills, balanced diet of meats and dog foods given at regular K-9 chow hours, regular hours of work and supervised "recreation."

There are no whips in K-9 corps equipment, Parmenter said, because "army dogs are 'good' dogs; they mind their own business."
